Hood Managing Partners Inc. Purchases an Environmental Company as its Second Acquisition in Eight Months

EDMONTON, Jan. 26 /CNW/ - Hood Managing Partners Inc. (HMP), a local industrial roll up venture, recently closed an acquisition of an Environmental Consulting company based out of Edmonton, AB. Geographic Dynamics Corp. (GDC) is a consulting company specializing in a multi-disciplinary approach to environmental impact assessment and sustainable resource development. The company was founded by John Beckingham, a leader in his field, who developed an environmental mapping program that has been integral to the company's success.

HMP was founded in 2006 with a strategy to build a full-capability company in the industrial sector aimed at acquiring and merging operations from several small operations. The company's first acquisition was Hood Tech out of Edmonton and Hood Engineering based in Calgary. In April of last year, HMP also acquired ICE Ltd., an instrumentation, controls, and electrical construction company, working in the Oil, Gas and Industrial facilities in Northern Alberta

Adding GDC to its portfolio of companies allows HMP to expand into one of its targeted business sectors: environmental services. Additionally it provides the organization with access to new markets, and a broader array of complementary services to HMP company clients. "This company is a good fit with our business plan's acquisition strategy, and we are excited to have the GDC team join the Hood family..." says Don Quist, Director of HMP.
